For the Client: CryoClear® is a new way of treating your skin to remove skin tags, age spots and sun spots. Before beginning any treatments with CryoClear it is important for you to be informed about the treatment including the potential benefits and risks. This will allow you to make an informed decision to consent or withhold any treatment program. It's suggested that you take time to read the information below along with any accompanying literature about CryoClear as you make your decision on whether or not to begin or not begin treatments.

I have requested treatment using CryoClear on sun spots, age spots and/or skin tags. I understand that the practice of aesthetic medicine is not a precise science and there is no guarantee of expected results. I also understand that several treatments may be necessary to complete the treatment.

Potential Risks and Side Effects

CryoClear works by freezing the area on the skin where it is sprayed. Each treatment spot is sprayed for 5-10 seconds. Following treatment you may feel some tingling and redness. Over the next few days the area will darken followed by the treated skin slowly falling off and new skin appearing in its place. Occasionally following treatment you may experience mild discomfort, erythema or loss of pigmentation at the treatment site.

I have been advised on the risks associated with treatment using CryoClear along with the potential benefits and alternative treatments including no treatment at all.

PHOTOGRAPHY RELEASE We would like to ask your permission to photograph the treatment area where CryoClear will be used before, in some cases during, and also after treatment. This allows monitoring of your treatment and results over time. We would appreciate your permission to share your results and outcomes with others in the aesthetic medicine and cosmetic/beauty industry. Your results may be used for marketing or training purposes.

I _____ give consent and permission for the use of the photographs captured before, during and after treatment with CryoClear to be used by the esthetician of Green Skin LLC for marketing purposes.
